In May, 2010, the SON Health Advocacy Program was launched as a joint venture between USF's School of Nursing and the School of Education's Project Learn Belize.

Building upon the success of that first visit, students, graduates & faculty in the School of Nursing traveled to Belize during USF Spring Break in mid-March, '11.

The participants presented educational modules, related to health and wellness, to students, faculty, and family members at Sacred Heart Primary School in Dangriga, Belize. Beyond the instructional lessons, they also had the opportunity to dialogue with health and civic leaders of the wider town community.

Project Learn Belize UPDATE

Health Advocacy Program: March 2011

Reflective of all programs sponsored by Project Learn Belize, the team members were immersed in, and transformed by, the realities of cultural diversity, traditions, and the challenges of education, health, and governance of this developing country in the Caribbean.
